Flames Threaten Gas Tanks Independent Co.

Small Shed, Pumps and Electric Motor Damaged to Extent About $600—1st Fire in Two Months

Fire, which started in the pump shed of the Independent Oil Co., adjacent to the tanks on East First street, east of the Burlington tracks, damaged machinery and property to the extent of about $600 this morning.

The fire truck was called out about 8:30 this morning, the first time in six weeks, and soon had the flames under control, which were threatening the gas and oil tanks of the Independent Co. The cause of the fire is not definitely known, although the only plausible suggestion is that something went wrong with the three horse power electric motor that was pumping gasoline from a tank on the tracks to one of the vertical tanks of the Independent Oil Co. One of the employes started the motor and left with a supply of gas for the city. On his return he found the fire starting in the small shed that houses the pump and electric motor. The shed was totally destroyed and the pumps, pipes and electric motor damaged, and the paint burnt off of one of the adjoining oil tanks.

The loss is covered by insurance.

This is the first fire that has occurred in Maryville for approximately two months, the fire company being called out on a run August 5, which proved to be a false alarm and the last fire was during July.

WILL REPORT ON FINANCES

DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE TO MEET TOMORROW.

CONSIDER PRIEST PLAN

St. Louis Jurist Suggests That Candidates Be Nominated in Convention—Ellison to Meeting.

George Robb Ellison will leave this evening for St. Louis to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic State Committee, which will be held tomorrow. Mr. Ellison is a member of this committee, the other members being S. B. Hunter of Cape Girardeau, former Supreme Judge Fred L. Williams of St. Louis, Mrs. O. E. Risser of Springfield and M. D. Campbell of Kirksville.

The purpose of the meeting is to hear reports of progress in the raising of funds to pay off party debts and to consider the suggestion of former Judge H. S. Priest of St. Louis that a state convention be called to indorse a candidate for United States Senator and other state candidates to be nominated next year. It is unlikely that the convention proposal will be approved as many think it is not feasible in the absence of any law governing the selection of delegates. Besides candidates who refused to submit their candidacies to a convention could enter the primary just the same, leaders point out.

Outlines Plan for Settlement by France

United States is Willing to Accept Annual Payments On Principal, Leaving Interest for Negotiation

Washington, Sept. 14—The existence of an official memorandum, outlining in a general way the terms which the American government will consider in funding the four-billion-dollar French war debt was confirmed at the state department today.

This memorandum was taken back to Paris last November by the then Ambassador Jusserand and presented to the French government.

It sets forth that the United States is willing to let France pay off the principal of her debt, amounting to approximately three billion dollars, in annual installments similar to the British settlement plan and leave the accrued interest to negotiations on a basis of France's ability to pay.

HOT CAMPAIGN COMES TO END

NEW YORK HAS BITTEREST MAYORALTY RACE.

WALKER IS FAVORITE

New York, September 14.—New York's bitterest mayoralty primary campaign in a generation came to a close today and on tomorrow the voters will decide at the polls whether Mayor John F. Hylan or Senator James J. Walker, Tammany Hall's candidate, will carry the democrat banner in the November election.

A new chapetr in political feudalism packed with the mud and brawling of the red fire days, spattered with innuendoes of religion and rum, personal conduct and vice, and intermingled with charges of broken faith and bartered favor, ended Saturday night with detailed claims of victory by rival campaign leaders.

Expect Hylan's Defeat.

Unbiased observers see Hylan's defeat.

The same observers forecast the nomination of Frank D. Waterman, the fountain pen man, as the Republican nominee. The November election then would find Waterman, Republican, opposing Senator Walker, Tammany Democrat.

More than a Hylan or a Walker victory appears as the stake in the Democrat primaries. Governor Alfred E. Smith's leadership of the New York Democracy, which means virtually the Democracy of the Atlantic Seaboard, is challenged by Hylan in a re-crudescence of the ancient feud between Smith and William Randolph Hearst, the politician-editor.

Smith and Hearst have finally come to grips. The ambitions of the editor-politician with residence and interests on both coasts and upward political stride of Al Smith from the sidewalks of New York have for many years been converging to a point where they must meet and clash. Hearst and Smith have never been friends, politically. In the days of Charles T. Murphy's leadership of Tammany, Boss Murphy held a bedraggled olive branch between them. Murphy is dead now and the election on Tuesday furnished Hearst with his first opportunity to engage the governor in open battle.

Visions For Hearst.

Old-time politicians vision Hearst grasping for the senatorship nomination next year, taking it from Smith, and farther away, in 1928, they see Hearst again with a presidential bee in his bonnet.

With two such political fortunes involved it is generally presumed that, should Hylan be defeated on Tuesday, Hearst, supporting Hylan as an independent, will continue his attack on Al Smith.

Tammany "expects" to defeat Hylan badly in the primary. The official "expectation" is for a minimum majority of 100,000 for the Tammany candidate, Walker. The official and urgent "hope" is for a much greater majority, because the Tammany leaders fear that unless Hylan is decisively repudiated at the primary, he will make the November race a three-cornered affair, which then would be favorable to the Republicans and others who have become weary of Tammany control and inner Tammany quarrels.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Force of Graham spent yesterday with the former's sisters, Mrs. Ethel Luther and Miss Esta Force of Arkoe.

IS FOR RATE HIKE

Former Official of Farm Bureau Federation Says Farmer's Purchasing Power Has Greatly Increased

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The farmer's income now is so much higher than before the war that he can buy from 10 to 15 per cent more goods and he is in a much more favorable position than ever before, H. W. Moorehouse, former director of economic research for the American Farm Bureau Federation, testified today at the interstate commerce commission hearing where the pleas of western railroads for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates is being voiced.

"In view of this great increase in the farmer's purchasing power, it is readily apparent that material freight reductions made in 1922 as an emergency measure now is no longer required," Moorehouse said in his testimony today.

"The balance for farmers in the year ending June 30, last after all expenses are paid, amounted to $5,140,000,000, an increase over the balance in 1922. Furthermore, the 1925 figures have been exceeded but three times in the last sixteen years and then it was a result of war-time inflation of agriculture prices."

YEARLY FUND FIGHT IS ON

GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS PRESENT CLAIMS

EXPECT BIG SURPLUS

Would Pave Way For Another Tax Reduction—Hope to Keep Expenses Within 3 Billion

Washington, Sept. 14—The governments' "family fight" to determine the amount of money to be spent in the year ending June 30, 1927 was officially started here today when the bureau of the budget opened appropriation hearings.

H. M. Lord, budget director, with a strangle hold on the treasury's purse strings, is striving to keep expenses as close to three billion dollars as is humanly posible. With estimated receipts of $3,200,000,000, depending on the slash taken at revenue in the coming Congress, the accomplishment of a three-billion dollar expenditure would provide the government with a neat surplus and pave the way for further tax cuts.

The battle between the budget bureau and the war and navy departments, waged every year since the Armistice was signed, is the most bitterly contested of the set-tos in the annual assault on the treasury by government departments.

Lord has announced he wants to keep the combined army and navy expenses under 600 million dollars, divided equally between the two departments.

COOLIDGE HOPES FOR CONSISTENT PROGRAM.

These were the principal motives that actuated Mr. Coolidge in nomnating an aircraft grand jury of nine members to make a ten-weeks investigation and report, it was stated today by his advisors.

The President's investigation will be conducted separately and apart from the court martial of Col. William Mitchell, which all Washington expects to be inaugurated within thirty days.

COLLEGE EDUCATION PAYS.

College campuses from Maine to California and from Florida to the frozen fastnesses of Northern Canada have blossomed forth in the early autumn with a brilliant crop of green perhaps the only example of nature's handiwork which does don a coat of green at the time of the first frost. Thousands of boys and girls, as well, products of last June's high school and preparatory school graduating classes, have entered upon the most important period of their education. Their motives for entering college are many and varied, and range from the desire to "make" the football team to spending four years in what seems a prison where learning is forced upon unwilling neophytes in allopathic doses. It is only fair that the freshman should know what he is going to receive in college and to what extent he will be benefited.

His association in a more or less intimate friendship with members of the college faculty should beget in him a proper respect for intellectual prowess. He will meet men who through long devotion think their lines of work outshine all others. Thus a capacity for judgment is former in discerning the more important from other degrees of importance. Tradition gives the faculty collectively and individually the characters of tyrants and oppressors who make the otherwise pleasant days of college life drudgery and torture. But any man several years out of college can look back with pleasant smiles to some one or two professors whose guidance and kindly encouragement have made hard roads easy.

Constant mingling with his kind in all manner of college and extra-college activities has a large effect upon the forming of character in the young student. A man who can meet men upon a common ground of intelligence and good judgment, discuss the problems of the day in the manner which he learned in college circles, stands higher in the opinions of his fellows. But character and personality without learning do not constitute a college education, nor does the belief that "book knowledge" is sufficient. Athletics, class room mental vigor and campus activities all contribute toward the finished product of a college graduate. A college man has learned to think, to concentrate upon a question and delve into myriads of conglomerate facts and extract those applicable to the subject. It is unfair to demand that a college man upon his graduation should at once step into a position which another has spent four years in reaching. But the college man should attain that position more rapidly and fill it better by reason of his training.

The World War soldiers who mourned in song that it was "a long, long way to Tipperary" seemed to regard that part of Ireland as an elysium, but the late news of semi-famine there, with two deaths from actual starvation, indicates that Tipperary is scarcely the garden spot of the world. To the war worn soldier, however, the homeland is the homeland, whatever the conditions.

An eagle recently attacked an aviator. He evidently thought his domain was being invaded. By and by we will forget that the upper air was not always in general use just as in the case of the American Indian. An Indian show troupe recently gave a very creditable performance in Chicago and elicited the especial interest of a prominent woman. She asked the manager if it was his first visit to Chicago and he said it was whereupon she asked, "What do you think of our country, anyway?"

The National Bureau of Economic Research announces that "the annual current income of all persons in the United States for 1920 amounted to $74,158,000,000." and presumably by 1930 we shall be told what the amount was for 1925, although the belated information may not add greatly to either our happiness or prosperity. Meanwhile it is of some importance to know that they never seem to be able to catch up with those expensive investigations at Washington.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER
By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Some big railroad men challenge the statement that the paying lines oppose consolidation with the unprofitable ones.

Well, it's fair to concede that a few individuals high in the transportation world do favor a national merger of all the systems, even though these same individuals may be shareholders in various paying roads. But the point is that they're shareholders in losing roads, too.

Obviously a man with a wad of dividend-yielding stock doesn't so much mind seeing these dividends cut down if other stocks he owns are put on a basis of producing dividends which they didn't return before. One offsets the other.

Moreover, consolidation presumably would result in economies by which the multiple stockowner would be just so much better off.

Finally, the big capitalist understands the markets and figures on making a speculative clean-up in connection with the reshuffle which almost invariably accompanies important mergers.

Yes, it's true that railroad consolidation isn't altogether an unwelcome idea to certain transportation magnates. Tails they win. Heads the other fellows lose.

But the small holder of stock in a single road—a profitable one—is in a different boat. Merge his road with one which doesn't pay and his dividents are reduced, with nothing to counterbalance his loss. He has nothing to speculate with, either. He wouldn't know how to do it if he had.

The Van Sweringen hearing, which has been dragging along for weeks in Washington, has been one long-drawn-out attempt on the Van Sweringens' part to prove that railroad mergers don't merge a lot of little stockholders out of their dough.

Still, when small stockholders get together they're a force to be reckoned with. Individually they're weak, but in numbers they count, financially and politically.

The magnates can't match them when they unite. And this, in the face of dangers, is what they're apt to do. That's the great onstacle in the way of realization of the Washington administration's railroad consolidation plans.

Barbara LaMarr in "Heart of a Siren"

Irving Wackoff, studio auditor, unwittingly perpetrated a joke of Fort Lee police during the making of "The Heart of a Siren" with Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle, that is showing at Empire Theater tonight and Tuesday. There was no safe at the studio and during the making of several scenes Miss La Marr wore some beautiful jewelry. One night Wackoff placed the jewels in a safe place, and calling two police had them carry the jewels to the police station. When the director asked for the pearls the next morning he was told the police were guarding them. After the picture was completed the police were informed the total value was not over $8.

Costumes 2,000 Years Old Found in Ohio

Homes of Mound Builders Reveal Many Pearls and Tortoise Shell Ornaments.

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 14.—Colorful costumes of two thousands years ago were found in the magnificent pearl-strewn tombs of mound builders near here, Prof. H. C. Shetrone, curator of the Ohio Museum said.

Knee high royal tunics of intricate designs were found near four skeletons—probably two men and two women of royal lineages.

On the walls and floors are "more pearls than the United States will produce in a decade," Shetrone declared.

Over the skeletons was a huge canopy of logs, uprights and cross pieces over which a less permanent roof work has been built. The logs had rotted and turned to carbon but were solid enough to be removed in large pieces.

Many tortoise shell ornaments were found in the ancient burial. All were intricately etched and polished, the prevalent design being those of birds.

The findings also indicated the dwellers who buried their dead in these tombs were peaceful. No weapons were found.

Large bear teeth, the largest ever found in Ohio, were strung on necklaces about the necks of the skeletons.

Although Shetrone has studied the mounds in Ohio for many years, he was unable to estimate the age of the burying place precisely. He said he believed it was about 2,000 years old, or perhaps older.

The cloth when it was uncovered began crumbling in the air. Before it was decomposed, artists were on hand who sketched the designs woven into it and photographs were made of it.

The findings were to be taken to the Ohio Historical and Archaeological Museum at Columbus.

Long Life means lowest cost

Buried in a Cloud of Dust for Days

the Light-Weight OilPull Gears are in no danger

Dust — dirt — sand — grit — those vipers that gnaw at gears — that steal away power — that wear out bearings — that hasten depreciation and add many dollars to upkeep — are powerless to hurt the new Light-Weight OilPull Tractor. You can operate it in a cloud of dust day after day without fear of damage.

For in this OilPull all operating parts are enclosed — all transmission gears are machine-cut, case-hardened steel, and operate in dust-tight cases, in baths of clean oil. Gears so protected have been known to operate for years — under hardest usage — and still carry the original tool marks. By such construction friction is robbed of its teeth — power is increased — life of service is lengthened — and cost is reduced.

In wet, slippery places — it gives double power — due to a Patented Drivewheel Interlock — by means of which the operator locks both drivewheels together at will. This prevents one wheel slipping, miring or digging in.

Range Cattle Coming Early to the Markets

By EARL J. JOHNSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Well ahead of the first snow, ranchers of the great grass carpeted ranges of the northwest are sending their cattle to the eleven principal markets of the country in such volume as to indicate a favorable turn in the way to prosperity, livestock men here told the United Press.

Montana, the Dakotas and other grazing states of the regions will have the best years since 1920, experts declare. Bigger and earlier cattle receipts here and in other packing centers mean more money for the ranchers, the packers and the midwestern manufacturers and merchants with whom they trade.

In from the ranges of Montana these warm September nights is coming an unbroken stream of cattle trains bringing to market grass fed steers of a quality that will average from one dollar to one dollar and a half hundredweight higher than last year.

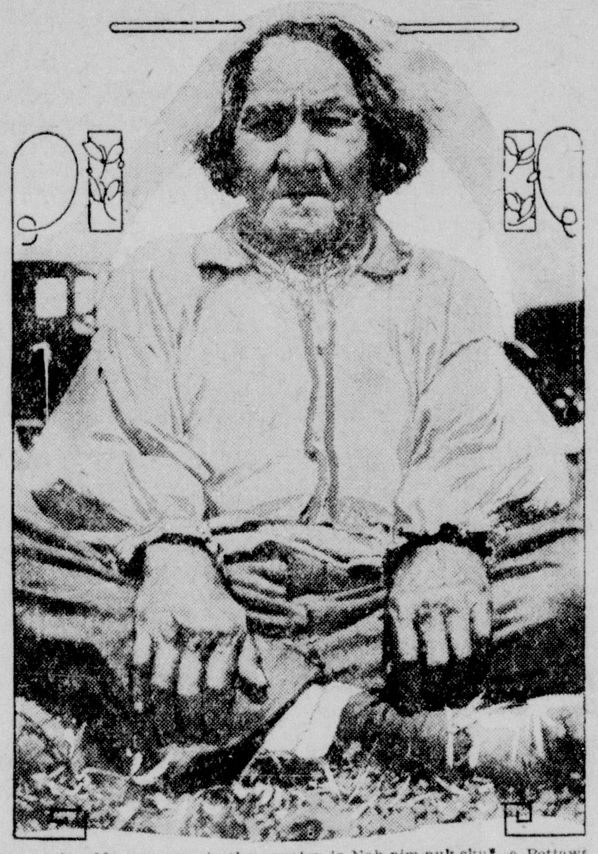
Usually the first arrivals do not begin until the snow line of the northwestern mountains begins creeping down toward the green valleys.

This year however the excellent condition of the grass lands has made it possible for ranchers to fatten their stock rapidly and give them an early start to market.

Charles Snyder, editor of the Drovers' Journal, declared grass cattle receipts in Chicago alone during August and the first 12 days of September totalled 87,000 compared with 37,000 for the same period a year ago. One day last week the Chicago exchange paid Northwestern ranchers $900,000.

According to James E. Poole, of the livestock exchange, the high prices being paid the range shippers will lead to better stock.

Ten Years Past Century Mark



One of the oldest persons in the country is Nah-nim-nuk-skuk, a Pottawatomie Indian, said to be 110. He was born near Chicago and rode a pony from there to Council Bluffs in 1835. He lives on the Pottawatomie reservation near Mayetta, Kas.

YOUNG "BOB" IS BIG FAVORITE

LA FOLLETTE'S SON MAY GET NOMINATION.

OPPOSITION IS SPLIT

Story Is Senator Had Planned To Have Son Be His Political Successor In Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 14.—Unless something unexpected occurs between now and election time, Robert M. LaFollette "Crown Prince" in the line of political succession in his family, stands every chance of being handed the republican nomination for United States senator to succeed his father at the republican primary in Wisconsin tomorrow.

Then would the "royal" line become firmly entrenched behind its extensive political offenses—a politically "blooded" family to deal with in future efforts of oppenents to capture control of the Wisconsin government.

While the LaFollete family successors, Bob and Phil, have been pulling together with all their force, backed by the machine of Governor J. J. Blaine, and of the old LaFollette organization, their opponents have been divided. Roy P. Wilcox, candidate for the regular republican organization running on a Coolidge platform, has Francis F. McGovern, twice governor of the state, and a factor among conservatives of the state, to contend with at the same time he is trying to route the LaFollettes.

Back of the trouble within the opposition forces lies much of the reason for the complete control that progressives now hold in the state government. A famous was scene is responsible—and the World War has been cutting a wide figure as a factor in the campaign.

Tiff With Governor.

Wilcox, a state senator at the time, in a war time meeting in the offices of Former Governor Emanuel L. Philipp back in 1918, accused the governor of being pro-German. Governor Philipp, at that time LaFollette's chief opponent having a son and daughter in the service, made a dramatic reply to the state senator during a meeting in the executive offices, and at that time swore that so long as he lived, Wilcox would not again hold public office if he could prevent it.

Although the former governor died recently, his friends have remembered his oath. Normally regular conservatives, have not been content to support the conservatives candidate but have brought one of their own men into the field. All of the hullabaloo about the campaign has centered around "Bob" LaFollette, the younger. Barely 30 years of age, the legal limit required of a United States Senator, he is being attacked as merely a fledgling, unable to comport himself as a senator, and sure to be merely a puppet in the hands of radicals.

All of the heavy gunfire directed at LaFollette policies and LaFollette practices as developed by the late Senator LaFollette have been directed at him.

Young Bob LaFollette has taken the stump himself, a venture at which it was thought he would fail. But he has been drawing huge crowds according to word from the state. His opponents claim that his drawing ability is merely that caused by curiosity of old followers of his father "to see what the son looks like."

LaFollette is usually a modest, retiring sort of chap, somewhat tacit and not at all cut out to be a public speaker, but it is said that he has been cutting loose with orotory in his speeches. His brother Phil has been lending him a hand in a speaking way. He has the steam and dash of his father and is a polished orator.

The story is that Senator LaFollette had his heart set in pushing Phil into a high political place—that he was grooming him as a successor. He started in the path of his father by having himself elected district attorney of Dane county. Phil takes naturally to politics and has cultivated the mannerisms of his father. But the death of the elder LaFollette came at a time when his younger son was only 28 and ineligible to a seat in the United States senate. The choice then fell on Bob Jr.

Eight games were scheduled for the Maryville High School Spoofhound football team this season by L. E. Ziegler, superintendent of public schools, and William H. Herbert, coach, at a meeting of coaches of the Northwest Missouri High School Association that was held at St. Joseph Saturday. Four games are scheduled to be played on the College field here and four games to be played away from home.

The big home game for the Spoofhounds will be with the Excelsior Springs gridders, who will come here on November 26, Thanksgiving Day, to resume football relations after two years. Mr. Ziegler said this morning that this game will be played in the morning so that it will enable fans to go over to Tarkio in the afternoon to witness the Tarkio College-Bearcat game.

The season will open here on Friday, October 2, with the Albany football machine as opponent. Three other games are to be played on the next three Fridays in October and on the thirtieth the Spoofhounds will rest. Cameron will play here on November 6 and on the next Saturday, the fourteenth, Lafayette High School of St. Joseph will play a return game here.

As compared to the schedule last year there are six new teams on the list, Albany, Tarkio, Trenton, Cameron, Chillicothe and Excelsior Springs. This will be the first year that the Spoofhounds will play Chillicothe and Trenton in a number of years, due to the fact that in the past few years the Spoofhounds have been confined to teams in this district in order to settle championship disputes. Maysville, the only team that defeated Maryville last year, and gave the Spoofhounds a bitter dose the game being for the championship of Northwest Missouri, is again scheduled, the game to be played at Maysville October 16.

Lafayette the only other team scheduled this year that played against the Spoofhounds in 1924 and lost 9 to 12, will play on the Maryville field this year. Last year the Spoofhounds were forced to play Stanberry and Westboro twice on account of the district title affair. Fairfax was dropped from the list this year, and Albany and Tarkio were added as new opponents. Savannah, always a stiff game for the Spoofhounds, were not scheduled as the two teams were unable to come to an agreement on dates.

This schedule rounds out one of the hardest that the Maryville gridders have tackled in several years.

The meeting of coaches of the Association went off very quietly at St Joseph Saturday and there was not even an intimation of any grievances to air. Three managers were appointed at the meeting, U. L. Riley of Maitland, basketball manager; Howard Leech, Rock Port, football manager, and W. L. McDonald of Trenton, debate manager.

Merchants' Club Loses To Conception Junct.

The Conception Junction town team yesterday evened the score with the Maryville Merchants' Ball Club at Conception by defeating the Merchants' aggregation 16 to 10.

H. Buhler started on the mound for the Maryville team but soon discovered it was one of his off days, the Conception boys touching his home seven runs in the first inning, three in the second and two in the third. John Brennan relieved Buhler and held the winners to four runs.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Sept. 14—Grains had a two-way close on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat finished slightly higher. Coarse grains were lower.

Short covering saved the day for wheat. The opening was easier. Toward mid-session, spirited selling by disappointed longs and commission houses sent prices into new low ground on the movement.

Corn received poor support. It was able to recover some of the losses when wheat was strengthened.

Oats trade was narrow.

Liquidation by heavy longs weakened provisions.

ELMO.

The Mt. Tabor School opened Monday with Miss Pauline Greeley from Gravity, Ia., as teacher. May success shine brightly upon her efforts this year.

The Elmo School opened Monday under the usual conditions. The young hopefuls are scattered over town in their quest for knowledge because of the incomplete temple of learning on the present school site. Classes are being held in three churches and in our humble opinion the teachers in charge are getting their money's worth for the honors of being moulders of the future generation.

The M. E. Bloomfield Poultry House changed hands the other day. The new buyer is R. W. Jones of Gravity, Ia. Mr. Jones is a stranger to the locality, but we are informed not strange to the poultry business and will doubtless do well under new environments.

This is our bow to Democrat-Forum readers and the reason for getting on the reportorial staff from these parts are these: Elmo is not represented among their correspondents; Col. Jim Todd, the head of the paper, is a prince of a good fellow but for his political views. Most important of all we tried to get control of the destinies of the Elmo Register and failed for lack of office help. We knew then that there would be no danger of our "copy" going to the office waste basket. We just must have a little something to do in connection with a newspaper more than reading it. Should our little efforts not land in the waste basket nor land us injail and our "dope" present or future not be so hot as to melt the linotype machines and the presses in a molten mass, we may take pleasure in racking our brain to secure "copy" for the Democrat Forum quite regularly. One good feature the operator that secures this "take" will not have a "run away" on the machine because of real good manuscript. What print shop helper or linotype operator ever looked at real good manuscript all day? He is numbered with the "Thirties," a dead one.

S. G. Williamson and wife returned Friday from a few days sight seeing in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Each of them got so much northern scenery that they were both sick while gone, but are about as good as new now.

The Huff horse sale at Westboro Thursday, was well attended and much of a success in spite of the rainy weather. Several from our neighborhood attended.

Most of our neighbors who attended the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines have returned home no worse for the wear and tear on their physical and mental beings. This week the State Fair at Lincoln is holding the attention of many of our people.

KNABB.

Knabb school opened Monday, September 7, with an enrollment of sixteen and increasing to eighteen on Tuesday. There were nine girls and nine boys. Miss Opal Thompson is the teacher.

The Hardisty Children did not start to school as one of them had the scarlet fever.

The school house was already for school, a new floor having been put in and oiled.

Many of the pupils were unable to obtain books and work will be slow for the first few days.

Several library books have been ordered for use in the school this year.

Knobview—A. M. Piazza, postmaster of this city, has visions of Knobview becoming a large raw silk producing center. He imported a number of silk worms from Italy, fed them on mulberry leaves, and now has a large basket of silk cocoon. He intends to place the raw silk on the markets. Knobview at present is known for its large grape production.

Harrisonville—A petition has been signed by 400 persons of Grand River Township requesting that Mrs. Mark W. Prewitt be appointed assessor to succeed her son, who died.

Grease Spots Rot Materials, Spread Disease

Experiments have proved that dry cleaning at regular intervals prevents the rotting of materials.

Every grease spot, though apparently unnoticeable, causes a decay that spreads germs and ruins the fabric of the goods.

Have your clothes cleaned often by a master cleaner to lengthen their life and prevent the spread of contagion.

PLATTE ADDED 89 YEARS AGO

THIS IS HISTORICAL WEEK FOR NODAWAY COUNTY.

IS INDIAN COUNTRY

Soil Of Northwest Missouri Sacred To Red Men Who Once Roamed Upon It At Their Will.

The following article is the third of a series written by Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri.

Just 89 years ago this week the Platte Purchase was added to Missouri and her territory made complete. It was on September 17, 1836, that the Platte Purchase treaty was signed and the six counties of Andrew, Atchison, Buchanan, Holt, Nodaway and Platte were added to the Mother of States.

Surely one may well feel proud to belong to what was during the Indian days before it was the illustrious city of St. Joseph, before it was Robidoux's Landing the mecca of steamboat men and fur traders—the beginning of the Indian's road to Paradise. Here was a soil sacred to the red man. What made it so.

The pioneers had it from the Indians that here was a Holy land, a place of peace to which the warring tribes from as far west as the Rockies could come to rest, to hunt, to make treaties, to recuperate their sick, to bury their dead, and once a year to hear the prophesies which as the ice broke up in the Missouri River were sighed from its waters by the catfish and interpreted to the tribes by their medicine men.

This was a rendezevous to which fled the shedder of blood: but here also was the resting place of armies, the meeting place of diplomats, the parliament of tribal rulers, the congress of religions, the haven of the desolate and the beginning of that long but pleasant road to the Happy Hunting Grounds according to Mary Alicia Owen, Missouri's foremost authority in international folklore.

Arrival of Squatters.

In later years the land embraced in the treaty was the hunting grounds of the Iowas, Sacs and Foxes. Greedy eyes of the paleface early fastened on it, so by 1834-36 more than 200 families of squatters were already within the borders. The Indians themselves saw that it was only a matter of time before the inevitable white man would have complete possession. They finally cherished the delusive hope that by moving westward they would at least find a place where the white settlers would not disturb them or their hunting grounds. What a sad delusion history proved this to be!

In the summer of 1835 at a regimental milita muster on Dale's farm three miles from Liberty, the first definite action was taken to obtain the territory for Missouri. During a recess for noon luncheon a mass meeting was addressed by Andrew S. Hughes, Indian Agent. He urged the purchase of the Platte country and so enthusiastically was his suggestion received that a committee was formed on the spot to accomplish it. On the committee was A. W. Doniphan, later commander of the famous expedition into Mexico; William T. Woods, later Judge of the Sixth District; David A. Atchison, later United States Senator; Peter H. Burnett, afterward of California; and Edward M. Samuel, later president of the Commercial Bank in St. Louis. All were residents of Clay County. A memorial was presented to Congress and a bill introduced embodying its suggestions by Senator Thomas H. Benton, who, however, gives all credit for the bill's passage to his colleague, Lewis F. Linn, the "model Senator from Missouri."

The difficulties were three-fold: First, to make larger a State already one of the largest; second, to make a treaty with Indians to whom the land had just recently been ceded in perpetuity, and third, to create new slave territory. However, in 1836 the bill passed.

The treaty was concluded at Fort Leavenworth between the chiefs of the Iowa tribe and the band of the Sacs and Foxes of the Missouri, and William Clark, the Superintendent of Indian affairs. Gen. (Red-Head) William Clark was a member of the famous Lewis and Clarke expedition, and later became Missouri's lest Territorial Governor. Perhaps no white man at the time had a fonder place in the hearts of red men. He was at once feared and loved by them. He understood their character almost by intuition, could forsee thei plans and intentions, and was their constant friend and protector from the impositions of white men. When they were all assembled, he would advise them to make peace with all their neighbors. A part of the life of St. Louis was the annual Indian pilgrimage to see "Red-Head."

What Treaty Provided.

According to the treaty drawn up by Clark, the tribes were to move across the Missouri to a tract of 400 sections and receive a bounty of $7,500. In addition, the Government promised the Iowas, who were to occupy the north portion, and the Sacs and Foxes, who were to have the south:

"Five and three houses; to inclose and break up for them 200 acres of ground; to furnish them with a farmer, blacksmith, schoolmaster, and interpreter, as long as the President of United States deems proper; to furnish them with such agricultural implements as may seem necessary for five years; to furnish them with rations for one year, a ferry boat, 100 cows and calves; 100 stock hogs, five bulls, one mill, and the sums of $500 and $400 for moving expenses."

The territory had one of the largest bodies of brown loess soil to be found anywhere in the world. Only the Rhine Valley and portions of the Yangtze Valley in China rival it. It is a wind-blown soil formed by the winds coming from the southwest and depositing layer upon layer of the choicest of soil materials. Little wonder that it was thought of as the "beginning of the road to Paradise" by the red men. On it grew in the wildest profusion corn, lush grasses, great forests, the choicest berries and the rarest of grapes.

The strip of land was about 100 miles long and on an average of 15 miles wide, and ran north to the Iowa line from Kansas City and then westward to the Missouri.

Only $1 in Bank

Leonard Wood, Jr., son of the governor-general of the Philippines, filed a petition in bankruptcy at Brooklyn, stating his bank account had dwindled to $1. His liabilities exceed $14,000, due to losses in theatrical productions. He is a brother of Osborne Wood, who made a "killing" in Wall Street and then squandered his fortune in Paris.
